In this Institute, you will:

- Understand how a new set of funders and funding instruments are creating new opportunities for social investments and mobilizing people.
- Explore the evolving intersection of technology, creativity and social impact.
- Determine impact, take risks, and scale projects.
- Design innovative solutions combining technology and policy for maximum impact.

The three days includes exclusive conversations and insights and tours with senior leadership at:

- Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation sharing their work on Financial Services for the Poor and Global Challenges.
- Global Good, a visionary organization established by Bill Gates and Nathan Myhrvold that through innovation and inventions is deploying commercially-viable technologies that improve life in low-resource countries.
- Microsoft where technologists are understanding how new technologies such as AI, VR and AR will impact societies in low-resource communities, including a tour of the Envisioning Center showcasing cutting edge technology in future homes and offices.
- Seattle Foundation, to understand innovative approaches to philanthropic solutions with a conversation around the launch of the Giving Compass a joint effort with the Raikes Foundation that is organizing the world's information to make it easier to give well.
- Tableau in partnership with PATH is working to eliminate malaria in Zambia, and understand how data and data insights can lead to effective interventions in complex situations.

- Participants also will benefit from the rich social innovation network of the Pacific Northwest by participating in shared activities, networking opportunities, and capacity-building exercises. Over the three-day program, participants will be exposed to innovative thinking by faculty from the University of Washington and interact with leading social innovation practitioners in the Seattle area.

Ready for a new adventure? Come to Seattle and benefit from the rich social innovation network of the Pacific Northwest by participating in shared activities, networking opportunities, and capacity-building exercises.
