The main focus from WHO is the agency and system-wide effort to save as many lives as possible and to continue to provide assistance to Member States on all areas of commitment.For the Migration and Health Programme, that means a number of new highly specialized internal working groups, and a daily engagement with the IMST (Incident Management and Strategy Team)

Global guidances and publications have been created , in order to include and highlight the needs of refugees and migrants in all aspects of the response and recovery.
